PUSH POLITICAL INDOCTRINATION IN ARMED FORCES

SET UP STUDY GROUPS IN OFFICERS' POLITICAL SCHOOL, NAVY -- Polska Zbrojna, 11 Jun 50

The most important task in the training of officer candidates is to give them the proper indoctrination and guidance in their studies. The Officers' Political School has organized study groups to help the candidate acquire a thorough knowledge of their problems. These groups are composed of four or six officer candidates and a supervisor. The supervisors are selected from among the candidates who are most proficient in their studies. The instructors, on the other hand, guide the work of the groups.

The supervisors make out their lesson plans for the week. In addition to the study groups, the instructors of the Officers' Political School conduct study sessions themselves. During these sessions, they check the work of the supervisors, review the weekly study plans, give guidance, and discuss the more difficult problems.

Polska Zbrojna, 20 Jun 50

In an effort to raise the ideological and professional level of navy personnel, the Party has devoted a great deal of attention to the formation of study groups. At one of its first meetings the Party committee outlined the nature and the forms of the study program. A resolution on the organization of study groups was approved. Comrades Rudomina and Ludwiczak were asked to organize and conduct study groups for those not included in the Party training program.

The study of the constitution of the United Polish Workers' Party is included in the preliminary program of the study groups. The history of the workers' movement will be taught.

A noncommissioned officers' study group has also been formed to improve their ideological training. This group holds meetings once a week in the evenings. The attendance at these meetings has not been satisfactory. Yet, as a whole, the study groups have achieved good results.

TIGHTEN LABOR DISCIPLINE IN MILITARY INSTITUTIONS -- Polska Zbrojna, 17 Jun 50

At a plenary meeting held 12 June 1950, the Central Board of the Trade Unions of Military Institutions' Employees discussed the law and regulations of the Minister of National Defense pertaining to labor discipline. At the meeting it was agreed that the regulations of the Minister of National Defense will contribute to the increase of productivity and will improve the present conditions of workers employed at military institutions.

It was also recommended that effective measures be undertaken by all union branches to carry out the law on work discipline.

The duty of all union activists is as follows:

1. To familiarize all workers with the facts and political meaning of the law and the regulations of the Minister of National Defense, to make it clear that the law is directed against loafers and idlers and those who protect them, and that it protects the interests of honest workers.

2. To use meetings, bulletin boards, etc., in conducting the fight against idleness and loafing.

3. To take measures against those who violate work discipline.

4. To strengthen more firmly the contacts with the management of institutions and military units, and to familiarize the entire trade union membership with the problems of the Army.

PARTY INDOCTRINATES ARMY UNITS - Polska Zbrojna, 18 Jun 50

The basic party organization of the "N" infantry unit recently formed Party groups in each company. The Party committee appointed organizers from among the most outstanding Party members.

The Party committee, aided by the political section, has planned a one-day seminar for Party organizers, dealing with the immediate problems of the Party groups. The tasks facing Party organizers will also be discussed at the seminar.

The most urgent and most important task which the committee has assigned to the Party organization is to raise the standard of leadership of Party members and of ZMP (Union of Polish Youths), both in military and political training.

The organization of Party groups deals directly with every Party member and candidate and with members of the ZMP. Party groups have achieved good results in a short time by establishing small cells to carry out individual tasks. Many soldiers have already raised their training standards, and by so doing have increased the quality of leadership.
